Our Open Cohort Approach

Our Open Cohort approach has been developed as an ideal solution for companies looking to release small groups of employees training. We have successfully run apprenticeship programmes in this format since the pandemic, and the demand for paid for online instructor led training has also grown significantly.

This format makes our programmes much more accessible and convenient, allowing organisations not only to take advantage of this world class training but also share ideas and network with other likeminded people and organisations.

For each programme we provide all the workshop dates in advance. We hope by providing visibility and prior notice of these dates you will be able to ensure availability for the programme, allowing plenty of time to plan ahead.

We are still delivering our training programmes to larger and closed groups, as a bespoke offering which allow for organisations to tailor the programme, increasing direct relevance and ensure it is in line with organisational goals. We can deliver this virtually, in person or as a blended hybrid approach. You can speak to our friendly team about our Closed Cohort options.
